

DIPLOMACY AND CRITICAL THEORY, APPLIED DIPLOMACY (BA)

"As it stands today, diplomatic theory and practice is for the most part the story of the European man: his triumphs, technologies of the self and methods for mediating otherness, hence the need to come up with an idea of diplomacy predicated on different subjectivities and set of ethico-political considerations."

- Sam Okoth Opondo, "Decolonizing Diplomacy: Reflections on African Estrangement and Exclusion," Sustainable Diplomacies, 2010

The Diplomacy and Critical Theory concentration provides a foundation for those interested in interrogating the power and practices associated with the field of diplomacy. The concentration provides preparation for a variety of careers, as well as advanced studies in the field. Students selecting this concentration will study critical social theory, culture and identity, and the impact of post-colonial studies on the practice and study of diplomacy.

Students in the Diplomacy and Critical Theory concentration are advised to take INT 206: Identities and Boundaries, before taking five additional courses from the following list. At least three of these must be at the 300-level.

Course	Title	Quarter Hours
Choose six from the following, at least two must be taken at the 300-level:		24
DPL 210	LEADERSHIP AND DIPLOMACY
DPL 295	SPECIAL TOPICS
INT 206	IDENTITIES AND BOUNDARIES
INT 302	CRITICAL SOCIAL THEORY
INT 305	CULTURE AND INEQUALITY
INT 306	GLOBAL EMPIRES
INT 307	RACE, SEX, DIFFERENCE
INT 308	NATURE, SOCIETY AND POWER
INT 317	READING MARX'S CAPITAL
INT 327	THE LONG LIFE OF EMPIRE
INT 362	LANGUAGE AND THE POLITICS OF TERROR	