COMPUTING (BAPS)

The Bachelor of Arts in Professional Studies with a Major in Computing is a joint degree program between the School of Continuing and Professional Studies (https://catalog.depaul.edu/colleges-schools/continuing-professional-studies/) (SCPS) and the College of Computing and Digital Media (CDM) at DePaul. The program builds knowledge and skills in computing and technology-based systems for application in a range of organizational settings. In this program, students examine their prior and current work-based experience in light of theory and principles. This program intentionally helps students to integrate liberal arts learning, with an emphasis on agile and critical thinking, with a professional specialization.

This major advances students' foundational knowledge in a range of computing areas. Students may pursue concentrations in computer science, information systems, information technology, network technology, and security. With a range of elective courses offered in the major, students may specialize further in areas of particular interest to them.

Features of the Bachelor of Arts in Professional Studies with a Major in Computing include:

- Designed for working adult students with flexible scheduling including online options
- Financial Aid, flexible payment options, and special adult student tuition pricing available
- Acceleration and affordability through transfer credit and prior learning assessment (PLA) credit
- Opportunities to combine bachelor’s and master’s programs and apply graduate courses to both programs
- Individualized program planning, course selection and advising assistance provided
