

INTERIM RESTRICTIONS

The Dean of Students may place interim restrictions on the student's participation in university programs, services, or activities (including attending classes, extra-curricular activities, and residential arrangements). Any interim restrictions will be determined on an individualized basis and will be consistent with the goals of reducing the impact of any behavior that indicate the criteria listed above and ensuring the safety of the student and the university community where this is of immediate concern. All interim restrictions will be communicated in writing to a student. In general, interim restrictions will remain in place until a final determination is made concerning a possible withdrawal (including any appeal).
