PURPOSES

The Liberal Studies Program at DePaul is the portion of the curriculum in which all undergraduate students participate, no matter what their college or major. It is central to all undergraduate degrees at DePaul because it accomplishes two purposes that the University considers essential to a liberal education. These purposes are, first, to bring the student to engage, as a matter of habit, in reflective intellectual activity and, second, to bring the student to an awareness that questions of value underlie all human activities.

Reflectiveness and value-consciousness are the conditions of intellectual freedom. They make explicit the spiritual dimension which underlies the university's concern for the human person. That dimension is the potential of human beings to discover, create, and inhabit worlds of meaning and significance. Only reflective persons who are deeply concerned with the value of various human enterprises can fully discover the spiritual dimension of their lives.

Ordinarily, reflection arises in the attempt to resolve concrete issues, problems, and conflicts or in the effort to explore the nexus between information, ideas or events, and their significance. But as an expressly liberating activity, reflection pushes forward to explore the modes of inquiry, the processes of learning, and the instruments and ends of knowledge. Through reflection a student does not merely engage in a range of intellectual activities but examines them and explores their possibilities. At this level, the student becomes not only a critical thinker but a self-critical thinker as well.

Such reflection grants the insight upon which freedom depends. A curriculum which persistently encourages reflection enables students to become self-critical, self-directing, and autonomous thinkers. Such students do not engage in intellectual activity haphazardly or from mere habit, but deliberately, and with a perception of its powers and limitations. And, since students begin with such knowledge, they are capable of modifying, augmenting, and transforming the activity in which they are engaged.

DePaul takes the position that students must grapple with value issues in all areas of their undergraduate education. Consistent with its emphasis on the dignity of the person, DePaul insists that the development of a value consciousness occur in a context which acknowledges the plurality of world views and value systems available to students in a contemporary society and which respects the student's right to choose freely but thoughtfully among them.

Since DePaul is a Catholic university, the consideration of religious world views and ethical values is given a prominent place in undergraduate education. However, the student's awareness of a value dimension to human life, of alternative value systems, and of the steps necessary to choose wisely among them is developed in several distinct but interrelated areas: religious and philosophical, societal and personal, intellectual, ethical, and aesthetic.

At the same time that the Liberal Studies Program curriculum stresses reflective-ness, value-consciousness, and critical inquiry, it also encourages students to become active participants in the exploration and discovery of knowledge. It does so, in part, through courses that enhance student awareness of diverse communities and the everyday issues, experiences, contributions and concerns of different peoples and cultures, both historical and living. In pursuit of these ends, students learn in many ways: through reading, writing, dialogues, first hand observation and participation, quantitative and qualitative research, and other creative activities. Although disciplinary knowledge is central to the Liberal Studies Program, student awareness of interdisciplinary perspectives and ways of knowing is also encouraged.

THE CURRICULUM

There are two components to the Liberal Studies Program. The first, called the Common Core, emphasizes communication, quantitative and intellectual skills, as well as an introduction to the urban and Vincentian nature of the university. Integration of the general education program is further enhanced by a series of common experiences throughout the student's educational career. These experiences include the First Year Program; the Sophomore Seminar on Multiculturalism in the United States; the Junior Year Experiential Learning requirement, and the Senior Year Capstone Seminar.

The second part of the program, called Learning Domains, is concerned mainly with the subjects that make up the conventional liberal arts and sciences curriculum. Breadth of learning is assured by asking the student to do course work in six Learning Domains: Understanding the Past (UP); Scientific Inquiry (SI); Religious Dimensions (RD); Philosophical Inquiry (PI); Self, Society, and the Modern World (SSMW); and Arts and Literature (AL).

These domains of the Liberal Studies Program represent possible ways of grouping the various inquiries found in the university. They identify and focus attention on areas of inquiry in which significant similarities are to be found, though not all activities carried on within a domain are identical. A liberally educated person is someone who has some experience, both practical and theoretical, with the diversity and range of inquiry represented in the university community. These particular domains facilitate that experience. They represent society's intellectual life in its theoretical, practical, and artistic moments. Through the programs of study within the domains, students are required to create or discover, however provisionally, a map of the intellectual world.

Finally, pre-collegiate skills in communication and computation are a prerequisite for domain study. Some students are therefore required to take certain skills courses before they begin the Liberal Studies Program. Moreover, since these generic skills are an integral part of all college work, it is one of the characteristics of the Liberal Studies Program that all courses seek to further develop these skills.

PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

The principle of adapting the Liberal Studies Program to the interests and academic requirements of the individual student extends to the number of hours (or courses) required of any student in the program. Given that all students do not seek or need the same preparation in liberal studies, the length of the program varies according to the nature of the student's degree. Consequently, the number of courses required of a student in the School of Music and The Theatre School is less than the number required in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, the School of Education, the College of Commerce, and the School of Computer Science, Telecommunications and Information Systems.

Students should consult the bulletin for a description of the particular requirements of their College or School as well as their individual departments.

Regardless of the number of courses required, the integrity of each student's liberal studies program is maintained. All liberal studies programs are of sufficient length to ensure that the several purposes of liberal education and the distinctive purposes of DePaul are adequately served.

MODERN LANGUAGE OPTION

Students who wish to study a Modern Language may do so for Liberal Studies Program credit. Those who begin the language at the introductory or intermediate level must complete a three-course sequence for liberal studies credit. Students who begin their work at DePaul with 200- or 300- level language courses may complete one or two courses for liberal studies credit.

Students who complete a three-course sequence may substitute two of the three courses for Liberal Studies Program credit. Students can select one course each from two of the following Learning Domain combinations: arts and literature or scientific inquiry (cannot substitute for the lab science requirement); philosophical inquiry or religious dimensions; self, society and the modern world or understanding the past. The third course of the sequence fulfills open elective credit. Students interested in this option should consult the listing for their college or school in this bulletin to determine the Liberal Studies Program courses for which the Modern Language Option will substitute.

Note: The Modern Language Option may not be used to meet the language requirement for Bachelor of Arts students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or School of Education. It may be used for advanced study once the requirement is met. The introductory language sequence will not fulfill the Modern Language Option and will not be counted for Liberal Studies Program credit for students who are native speakers of the language. The intermediate sequence will not fulfill the Modern Language Option and will not be counted for Liberal Studies Program credit for students who are native speakers of the language unless the chair of the Modern Languages Department so recommends. Interested students should contact their academic advisor or their college office for information concerning the regulations and procedures governing the exercise of this option.

COMMON CORE

The Common Core is a series of experiences throughout the Liberal Studies Program that emphasizes communication, quantitative and intellectual skills, as well as an introduction to the urban and Vincentian nature of the university. The Common Core begins with the First Year Program, followed by a Sophomore Seminar on Multiculturalism in the United States, a Junior Year Experiential Learning requirement, and a Senior Year Capstone Seminar.

The First Year Program has two overarching goals: introducing students to the process of intellectual inquiry as it is practiced in a university, and community building. The First Year Program consists of Discover Chicago, Explore Chicago, Focal Point Seminars, Quantitative Reasoning and the Composition and Rhetoric Sequence. Students taking ENG 103 and/or ENG 104 at DePaul must receive grades of C- or better in order to fulfill the Liberal Studies requirement.

The Experiential Learning component, although recommended for the junior year, can take place in any one of the years when it is appropriate. This requirement can be met in one of the following ways providing it is approved by the university: study abroad, domestic study, service learning, internship, or individual or group research projects involving extensive field work or work in the laboratory.

The Senior Year Capstone course provides students with the opportunity to integrate and reflect upon the diverse components of their education. Students will have the opportunity to connect their major field of study with broader issues raised in the general education process. Students must earn a grade of C or better in the senior year capstone course.

SOPHOMORE SEMINAR ON MULTICULTURALISM IN THE UNITED STATES

Students are required to take an approved Liberal Studies Program course that addresses some dimension of multiculturalism in the context of the United States. Multiculturalism includes issues and topics such as ethnicity, race, class, gender, language, religion, and sexual orientation. These courses generally include the examination of the history of multiculturalism and the experiences and perspectives of different cultural groups. They enable students to develop a critical perspective about the meaning of multiculturalism and provide an understanding of the historical and/or contemporary manifestations of inequality. They also examine the contributions of different cultural groups to the ongoing development of the American experience and American society and culture. Courses are identified in the schedule as ISP 200.

JUNIOR YEAR EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

The Experiential Learning requirement engages students in the first-hand discovery of knowledge through observation and participation in activities, most often in field-based settings outside the classroom. This inductive process of “learning by doing and reflecting” is supported by theory based information. In these courses, students will search, order, compare and analyze information which will result in the discovery of knowledge about issues, problems, ideas, communities, as well as their personal and intellectual relationship to the same.

Experiential learning work may take place in a regularly scheduled course or an approved internship, or in an independent study format approved on a case-by-case basis. All such courses may be offered in the student's major and can count for both major field and Liberal Studies requirements. Students who elect this option will substitute a Liberal Studies domain elective (from outside the students' major field area) for the Experiential Learning requirement. When more than four credit hours are earned from such an experience – for example, an eight-hour internship – four hours may be counted toward Liberal Studies requirements and four hours toward major program requirements. Any work that meets the experiential learning requirement must be approved by the Liberal Studies Council.

The Experiential Learning component is recommended for the junior year because much of the learning necessitates foundational knowledge and the ability to manage the independence essential for such an experience.

FORMS OF EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

Study Abroad: Study Abroad programs emphasize social, political, historical and cultural understanding through a total immersion into the life and culture of a foreign country. Study trips abroad range in duration from two weeks to a full academic year. Domestic Study: Domestic study courses offer students the opportunity to learn more about the United States in a geographic location outside Chicago.

Community-based Service Learning: Community-based Service learning courses provide students with the opportunity to work with a community organization or agency and to reflect upon what they have learned through this service in class discussions. Information on service learning opportunities is available through DePaul's Steans Center for Community-Based Service Learning Center. See current schedule for a list of departmentally based offerings.

Internships: Internship courses offer students the opportunity to experience and reflect on the hiring process, work activities, communication and culture of businesses or organizations. Students who apply and receive internship opportunities through the University Internship Program will register for ISP 250. In addition some colleges and departments offer 200-level and 300-level internships that will satisfy the experiential learning requirement.

Individual or group research projects: These research projects involve extensive field or laboratory work. The projects are supervised, evaluated and graded by a faculty member. Please see class schedule for current offerings.

SENIOR YEAR LIBERAL STUDIES CAPSTONE

Students are required to take a Liberal Studies Capstone course in their major field during their senior year. Some Liberal Studies Capstone courses may be offered jointly for students in related majors and fields of study. These courses provide students with an opportunity to integrate their major area of study with broader issues raised in their general education program. These courses do not replace capstone experiences in the major field whose purpose is bringing some degree of integration or closure to the student's major field of study alone. Rather, the Liberal Studies Capstone experience allows students to see the relationship of ideas, perspectives, and substantive areas of scholarship and creative work within their major field and those learned through their course work in the learning domain courses and other courses and experiences of the Liberal Studies Program.

LEARNING DOMAINS

ARTS AND LITERATURE

Courses in the Arts and Literature domain ask students to extend their knowledge and experience of the arts while developing their critical and reflective abilities. In these courses, students will interpret and analyze particular creative works, investigate the relations of form and meaning and through critical and/or creative activity come to experience art with greater openness, insight and enjoyment. These courses focus on works of art or literature as such, though the process of analysis may also include social and cultural issues. Work in this domain includes literature, the visual arts, media arts, the performing arts, music and theater.

Students will complete three courses in this learning domain, with not more than two courses coming from the same department or program.

For course descriptions see individual department listings.

PHILOSOPHICAL INQUIRY

Courses in the Philosophical Inquiry domain address conceptual issues fundamental to reflection on such philosophical topics as metaphysics (e.g., being and nonbeing, the one and the many, the nature of reality, same and other, self and other); epistemology (e.g., the nature and possibility of knowledge, different ways of knowing, knowledge vs. opinion, truth and falsity); ethics (e.g., right and wrong action, good and bad, objectivism and relativism in ethics, social and political philosophies, the idea of value, the problem of evil); and aesthetics (e.g., the nature of beauty, aesthetic value, the possibility of aesthetic valuation). Courses address questions of how philosophical topics such as those indicated above impinge upon, shape, and challenge student lives. Students will take two courses in this domain.

For course descriptions see individual department listings.

RELIGIOUS DIMENSIONS

Courses in the Religious Dimensions domain offer students the opportunity to explore the explicitly religious dimensions of life and culture. These dimensions are found in the culturally embedded narratives, beliefs and practices of particular religions, as well as in encounters with realities perceived to be ultimate or sacred. Through myth, symbol, ritual and doctrine, these religions not only provide order and meaning, they also carry capacities to challenge and transform individuals and societies. Intellectual and social maturity requires understanding the unique contributions, both positive and negative, of the religious traditions of the world to culture and consciousness. It also requires coming to terms with questions of ultimacy. This Learning Domain offers courses with a comparative, thematic or ethical focus, as well as courses in specific traditions.

Students will take two courses, in any order, in this Learning Domain. One course will be selected from the category of Patterns and Problems. Another course will be selected from the category Traditions in Context.

For course descriptions see individual department listings.

SCIENTIFIC INQUIRY

Courses in the Scientific Inquiry domain are designed to provide students with an opportunity to learn the methods of modern science and its impact in understanding the world around us. Courses are designed to help students develop a more complete perspective about science and the scientific process, including: an understanding of the major principles guiding modern scientific thought; a comprehension of the varying approaches and aspects of science; an appreciation of the connection among the sciences and the fundamental role of mathematics in practicing science; an awareness of the roles and limitations of theories and models in interpreting, understanding, and predicting natural phenomena; and a realization of how these theories and models change or are supplanted as our knowledge increases. Students will take three courses in this learning domain. The Quantitative Reasoning course (or placement out of the course through the placement tests) is a prerequisite for all courses in this domain. Students must complete at least one course with a laboratory component and at least one course with a strong quantitative component. A course listed as laboratory/ quantitative will fulfill a student's laboratory or quantitative requirement, not both.

Students may use the full year-long sequences in biology (BIO 101, 102, and 103) , chemistry (CHE 111, 113, and 115 OR CHE 171, 173, or 175), or physics (PHY 150, 151, and 152 OR PHY 155 and 156) to fulfill this requirement. Otherwise, at most 2 courses can come from the same department or program.

For course descriptions see individual department listings.

SELF, SOCIETY AND THE MODERN WORLD

Courses in the Self, Society and the Modern World domain focus on the mutual impact of society and culture on individuals and of individuals on society and culture. Particular attention is given to human relationships and behavior as they are influenced by social, economic and political institutions, spatial and geographical factors, and the events and social and cultural forces of modernity. This Learning Domain is concerned with such issues as the role of power and the bases of inequality in society and in international relations. It examines individual cognition, feelings and behavior as they affect the well-being of members of society, relationships and collective life. The domain examines the processes of human development and learning and the importance of culture in everyday life. It emphasizes the pursuit of knowledge on such matters through the development of theory and the application of methods of inquiry that draw on the empirical investigation of the modern world. Courses in the domain explore such particular issues as poverty and economic opportunity, the environment, nationalism, racism, individual alienation, gender differences, and the bases of conflict and consensus in complex, urban societies and in global relations.

Students will complete three courses in this Learning Domain, with not more than two courses coming from the same department or program.

For course descriptions see individual department listings.

UNDERSTANDING THE PAST

Courses in the Understanding the Past domain study human life in past societies (primarily pre-1945) as a process of continuity and change over time. Many of the documents that mediate the past to us have considerable aesthetic or intellectual value in and of themselves. However, courses in this Learning Domain will examine texts, art works, and other forms of evidence less for their aesthetic or intellectual value than for their usefulness as tools for reconstructing aspects of the past and building sensible, defensible, and well-informed historical interpretations about the past and about causation in the past. Students are required to take two courses in this Learning Domain. Students may choose to take their courses in any of these categories, but they may not take more than one course in any given category. Taking more than one course in a single category will result in one of those courses counting as elective credit, rather than fulfilling the U. P. requirement.. The six categories are: 1) Asia; 2) Latin America; 3) Africa; 4) North America; 5) Europe; and 6) intercontinental or comparative history.
